By Ken Willard

The Islander

A single-seat seaplane with a large seaplane-type wing, it could do with any boat or tent conventional low wing design, so long as the float was big enough to support the weight of the plane inside and also big enough to have on the outside of the floats for the largest of the seaplanes.

The Islander is easy to build and a quick way to take advantage of all these plans around you. Try it for your next flying adventure.